SUPPLEMENT

1. Between 15 and 20 August 1947 a contingent of Soviet railroad workers arrived in Harbin via the Harbin-Manchouli line. On 24 August these people took up their duties as mechanics, station supervisors, and railway guards. In the large stations (between Harbin and Manchouli?) there are thirty workers (from this group?); in the small stations there are five or six.
2. The number of Soviet railway workers in this group is approximately 1,970.
